

The NEW YORK Sun

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21, 2007

PHOTOGRAPHY

THROUGH A VISITOR'S EYE Born in Jackson, Mich., in 1876, chemist William Richardson had a passion for nature and photography. He visited New York City in the 1920s and shot famous venues such as the Brooklyn Bridge. Selections from a self-titled series of prints at Gitterman Gallery include "Grand Central Station" (c.1920s), above. Through Saturday, May 5, Wednesday-Saturday, 11 a.m.-6 p.m., Gitterman Gallery, 170 E. 75th St., between Lexington and Third avenues, 212-734-0868, free.